Dear Dirk and Triin,

I have just been informed that your book has now been published – congratulations!

In order to ensure the contributing authors receive their free copy of the book, we will need for you to supply us with their full contact information, as outlined on the Contributor Information spreadsheet sent to you at contract stage, and now reattached above. If you have not done so already, please could you supply me with the completed spreadsheet as soon as possible.

New Projects

I would like to thank you for publishing with Palgrave Macmillan, and we would really like to hear about your latest project. Please do get in touch again in the future. May I also draw your attention also to our new format, Palgrave Pivot, which allows us to publish peer-reviewed research (of 30-50 thousand words) within 12 weeks of acceptance of the manuscript. More information on this initiative is available here: www.palgrave.com/pivot.

Marketing

If they haven’t already, our author care team will likely be in touch with you shortly to tell you about the sales and marketing of your book, for now I’ve listed below some useful contacts here for any post-production queries:

- Email authors@palgrave.com for queries relating to publicity for your book, review copies, and ordering flyers for conferences and events
- If a journal or publication contacts you requesting a review copy of your book, please refer them to reviews@palgrave.com
- If you would like to join our mailing list, email your details to mailinglist@palgrave.com
For any royalty queries please contact royalties@macmillan.co.uk

To place an order with your author discount online, enter the discount code AUTFORTY in the online basket to apply your 40% author discount.

We very much hope you are as pleased with the book as we are, and look forward to working with you on future projects.

With very best wishes,

Judith
